Men back of child labor conference in Washington this week and a few scenes typical of the little fellows they want to help. BY WALDON FAWCETT.

Theodore Roosevelt during his tenure of the presidency, and particularly during the final years of his administration, has inaugurated many humanitarian projects of the greatest importance. It is safe to say, however, that none of these newly-opened lines of activity will prove of greater ultimate significance than the movement which is to be launched at the White House during the closing week of January. This gathering, which will be distinctly novel in character, will be a "child labor conference," but this term is scarcely comprehensive enough to indicate its full scope.

Primarily this mass convention of philanthropists, educators, charity workers and others collected in the cause of the common good is scheduled to take up the problem of the orphan children and training of the orphan children of America—a juvenile army that now numbers more than 100,000 souls. However, it is expected that this topic, big as it is, will but serve as an entering wedge for the consideration of a yet bigger one—the conditions confronting and the influences affecting all child workers in the United States.

President Roosevelt has called the coming congress of social and charity workers because he is aroused over the regrettable manner in which dependent children are allowed to grow up in the country surroundings, "the question which will come up for discussion which will come up for discussion of some definite approved policy will be not only the treatment of the thousands of children in orphan asylums throughout the land, but will also deal with those other thousands of children who are orphans in effect, or in so far as parental training and discipline contribute to child development. These orphans of the workhouse and the inmates of orphan asylums, and the countless millions of children who are consequently much attention will be bestowed upon settlement work, the operation of juvenile courts and other helpful agencies. Finally, the time of often deplorable conditions surrounding the child workers in various parts of America—in the slums of our large cities, in the coal mines; in the cotton fields of the south, and in a dozen other industrial fields that take heavy toll on juvenile life.

President Roosevelt's call for the first conference on this subject was issued in response to a letter sent to him by number of the most prominent child-saving workers in the country—the latter calling attention to the fact that there has been up to this time comparatively little general interchange of ideas on the subject of children who are merely unfortunate, rather than troublesome, such as are most of the youngsters who appear before juvenile courts. The signers of this appeal for action on the part of the chief magistrate to start the ball rolling, cited as assurance of the president's interest in the subject Mr. Roosevelt's message to congress that resulted in the establishment of a model juvenile court in the District of Columbia. Incidentally, it may be noted that a close-range inspection of the workings of this court will be one of the features of the conference.

The president in his letter of invitation to prominent men and women to attend the White House conference, said, by way of introduction: "Surely nothing ought to interest our people more than the care of the children who are destitute and neglected, but not delinquent. Personally, I very earnestly believe that the best way in which to care for dependent children is in the family home. In Massachusetts many orphan asylums have been discontinued and thousands of the children who formerly have gone to the orphan asylums are now kept in a private house, either on board, with payment from public or private trustees, or in adopted homes provided by the generosity of foster parents."

Among the workers of national prominence who are expected to make addresses at the first conference are Jacob Rile, the New York social worker; Ernest P. Dicknell, who was president of the charities and correction conference; Jane Addams, Chicago's famous social settlement worker; Dr. Elmer E. Brown, the national commissioner of education; Booker T. Washington, the leader of the uplift among the negroes; Rabbi Hirsch of Chicago; Herbert Parsons of New York; Judge Lindsay, of Denver's juvenile court; Dr. Hastings H. Hart of the Russell Sage Foundation; Father McMahon, supervisor of Catholic orphan children in New York; Herman A. Metz, controller, New York city; Judge Julian W. Mack, president National Conference of Jewish Charities; Mrs. John M. Glenn and Miss Lillian H. Wald of the National Child Labor committee; as well as a long list of officials of the various state boards of charities, etc.

According to present plans the conference will endorse and precipitate a country-wide agitation in favor of the establishment of a National Children's Bureau as a branch of the national government, the new bureau to become a part of one of the federal departments at Washington. The object of this new governmental institution would be the collection and dissemination of accurate information in regard to child-labor work and with reference to the needs of children throughout the United States. This scheme has been broached several times within the past few months, but is expected that the conference at the White House will give it an impetus that will command wide attention.

A somewhat kindred topic that will receive consideration is the question of whether or not the states of the Union should supervise the work of child-labor agencies, including both institutions and home-finding societies. Then will follow discussion of whether the approval of state boards of charities or other bodies exercising similar powers should be necessary to the incorporation of child-labor agencies. Similarly the question will be raised as to whether the care of children by other than incorporated agencies should be forbidden.

When the congress reaches the problem of the management of orphan asylums it is inevitable that a spirited controversy will be precipitated between the advocates of the two "schools" that now obtain in this sphere. On the one hand will be ranged the authorities who contend that orphan asylums should be conducted in accordance with hard and fast rules, the inmates being trained to conform to discipline with military precision. Arrayed against them will be the champions of what is claimed to be the modern theory—that which proscribes a life in "cottage communities" rather than in "institutional institutions" and which, in addition to seeking to bring the child into the family life of a home, is designed to develop the individuality of the child.

One of the big problems that will be grappled with by the child-saving workers is whether or not children of parents who are worthy but temporarily unfortunate and the children of widows who are worthy and of reasonable efficiency should be kept with their parents, and if so, to what extent should be given such parents suitable for the rearing of their children. In other words, the question at issue will be whether the breaking up of a home should be permitted for reasons of poverty or only because of inefficiency or immorality on the part of the parent.

ASSEMBLY INSISTS ON SHORT SESSION

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Madison, Wis., Jan. 29.—The assembly has not its foot down and is demanding a short session. Yesterday the senate voted to adjourn until next week, but the members of the assembly by a decisive vote refused to concur. Assemblyman Culbertson said that the men from the northern part of the state didn't believe in being entertained by the other members of the assembly three days in a week, and they were compelled to entertain themselves for the remaining four days. He declared the only way to get a short session was by working every day. The committee are making ready for hearings. The Judiciary committee took up the home rule bill for Milwaukee yesterday afternoon. There will be numerous committee hearings next week. One week from Saturday will close the time for the introduction of bills and it is expected that fully 500 will come in next week. Some of the members are holding back on their measures awaiting the settlement of the senatorial controversy.

OPIUM TRAFFIC IS SUBJECT DISCUSSED

At Conference of Nations Which Will Be Held in City of Shanghai
Next Week.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Washington, D. C., Jan. 29.—During the coming week representatives of virtually all the civilized nations will meet in Shanghai to discuss a problem that has stirred Christendom for fifty years, namely: the abolition of the opium traffic. At this first international conference of its kind, of whose importance the public as yet has little realization, the United States will ask the powers to restrict the world's vast areas of opium plant and sale of opium, principally in India.

The proposal of the United States is that each Government's Commission should proceed independently with the investigation of the opium question on behalf of its respective country, with a view, first, to limit the opium in the possessions of that country; second, to ascertain the best means of suppressing the opium traffic if such now exists among the nationalities of that Government in the far East, and, third to be in a position so that when the Commission meets the representatives of the various powers may be prepared to cooperate in definite measures for the gradual suppression of opium cultivation, traffic and use within their Eastern possessions, thus assisting China in her purpose of eradicating the evil from her empire.

MORAN AND MURPHY FIGHT IN NEW YORK

English Featherweight and Lightweight Appear in Bout Before
National Athletic Club.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
New York, Jan. 29.—Owen Moran, the clever English featherweight, and Tommy Murphy, the New York light-weight, are to appear in the star boxing bout of the entertainment, tonight at the National Athletic club. They are scheduled to fight ten rounds. No bout scheduled for the metropolitan district in a long time, has aroused so much interest among the sporting fraternity as the matching of Moran and Murphy. Long negotiations were necessary before an agreement between the two was reached. The matter of weight furnished the principal point of dispute. Moran is at his best at about 125 pounds, while Murphy prefers to fight at about 135 pounds. It was finally agreed to fix the weight at 130 pounds at New York. If Moran wins over Murphy he will be in direct line for the championship and those at the top of his division can scarcely afford to ignore his challenge. Since his arrival in this city, the little English fighter has engaged in numerous bouts and with unvarying success. Murphy is about the hardest proposition he has faced. The two are regarded as pretty evenly matched and it is expected they will furnish one of the fastest and hardest bouts seen around New York in a long time.

WORK OF TODAY'S SESSION

J. Campbell White and Lyman L. Pierce led the discussions this afternoon. Mass Meeting tonight.

At ten o'clock this morning a pastor's meeting, incidental to the conference, was held in Trinity church. General Secretary J. Campbell White spoke.

The afternoon from 2:30 to 4:00 o'clock a campaigner's conference took place in St. Peter's English Lutheran church, when practical problems of church work that deal directly with the foreign missionary enterprise were taken up. This meeting was dedicated with a view to show pastors how to bring their own congregations to the highest standard of missionary efficiency as well as how to win converts in the entire district. General Secretaries J. Campbell White and Lyman L. Pierce led the discussion. Some of the important points brought out are hereafter given:

Keynotes of Laymen's Movement.

1. The pastor is, and always will be, the most important single factor in the missionary life of the congregation. It is his privilege to inform, inspire and lead his congregation so that it may take its true place as a world force.
2. Absolutely essential to the highest efficiency of a congregation along missionary lines is the cooperation of a group of strong laymen whose chief responsibility through the year shall be the promotion of missionary intelligence, and the organization of thorough methods of missionary finance. This group of laymen is generally called the Missionary committee, and should be officially appointed each year.
3. The best method of missionary finance has been abundantly proved to be the weekly offering. It is an easy way to secure ten cents a week from members from the ordinary church member as to secure one dollar at any one time in the year in an annual collection. The weekly method has also enormous educational and spiritual advantages.
4. Public education on the missionary problem and its solution by laymen, as well as pastors, is perfectly indispensable if the best results are to be secured. The place to begin this is at the regular church service when two or three laymen will speak. This should be followed wherever possible by a supper during the following week, where the men of the congregation under capable leadership will discuss what their congregation as a whole should do for the world's evangelization.
5. The next step is a thoroughly organized canvass of the entire church membership for individual subscriptions on the weekly basis, for the work of "mission" every member and adherent of the congregation should be seen not only by individuals, but by groups of two or three men going to each home. A large number of men can be secured to assist in this canvass so that no one group of men will need to visit more than fifteen or twenty homes.
6. Missionary intelligence should be kept growing. To this end the Missionary committee should circulate selected literature at proper intervals, and should have complete charge of one meeting each month when they will present a carefully prepared program in which the men of the congregation will speak on various missionary themes assigned to them well in advance. This meeting will work like the place of the mid-week service once each month.
7. In addition to the literature, which may be secured from the various mission boards, a splendid general view of the problem may be secured by studying a packet of literature recommended by the Laymen's Missionary Movement, 1 Madison Avenue, New York. This package consists of eighteen pamphlets by missionary experts, together with a booklet by Dr. James L. Barton on "The Unfinished Task."
8. The Laymen's Missionary Movement can be launched in any community by the organization of a strong committee of representative laymen, consisting of three men from each congregation, who will plan for a series of meetings where the message and method of the movement may be presented. Each city where a campaign has been held will assist in furthering speakers, as will also the Laymen's Missionary Movement, and the various missionary boards. No such campaign can be conducted with advantage without a complete table of statistics of the community showing the following four facts:

- (a) The number of church members (by denominations).
- (b) The amount spent on congregational support.
- (c) The amount spent on all kinds of benevolent and educational work at home.
- (d) The amount spent abroad.

These figures will prove a most suggestive basis of study, and are indispensable to the adoption of a policy of advance toward which the community will work.

No campaign should be held without leading up to this discussion and adoption of a definite policy looking toward the solution of the missionary problem.

9. It is of inestimable advantage to each church to undertake the missionary work in cooperation with the other churches in the city or community. Only in this way do we become conscious of the essential unity of the Church of Christ in facing our common problem of making the knowledge of Christ universal. Only by working together can we hope to meet the need. As we work in cooperation we gather inspiration and faith to attempt the otherwise impossible. As every man contributes through his own church and mission board, the cooperative effort to evangelize and uplift all of our churches is not only unobtainable, but has the completed endorsement of all the churches in North America.

10. Though the evangelization of the world is the objective of the Laymen's Missionary Movement, it is proving in many cities the greatest possible benefit to the churches at home. There is no way by which we can so surely and speedily make the church in America what it ought to be, as to dare to undertake in Christ's name and power, the whole work of evangelizing the world.

11. There is only one rational interpretation of the Great Commission of Christ: "Preach the gospel to every creature," viz.: that the moment what is said, it is possible to do this literally within the next twenty-five to thirty years, if the church will undertake it in earnest. The challenge of the Laymen's Missionary Movement in a word is "DO IT NOW."

12. The one most important condition of success in this enterprise is prayer. It is not primarily a financial movement, but a spiritual uprising. The movement itself was born in a layman's prayer meeting, which continued for nearly three hours. The deepest impression the movement has made upon men all along the path of its work has been a profound impression of the reality and value of spiritual things. We expect to win converts in proportion to the spiritual fervor which shall be released through our lives by prayer. As Needham said: "Let us advance upon our knees."

Denominational Conferences.

From 4:00 to 6:00 p. m. denominational conferences are taking place in the Lutheran church. The themes are:

What is our present standard for missionary giving?

The apportionment plan; how shall we construe it?

What is the need of an advance?

What standard of giving would be required to provide for our share of the world?

What shall be our policy for this district?

DRUNKS BROUGHT UP IN MUNICIPAL COURT

One Fined, Sentence Suspended for One and Two Cases Adjourned—One Spent $120.

In municipal court this morning the prisoners brought up were charged with drunkenness. In one of them the spendthrift proclivities of Gilbert Olson, a farmhand living in the town of La Prairie, were brought to light, when the man was asked if he could pay his fine. A bank book which showed that he had deposited $120 with one of the banks here was found on him and it was thought that he would be able to pay from that amount, but on questioning him and inquiring at the bank it was found that he had spent it all. The money was put on deposit for a few days and now all that Olson has to show for it are the checks and a bad head-ache. Yesterday the man was found in a drunken condition and put in jail. The decision of the judge in his case was a fine of $3 and costs amounting to $4.10 or five days in jail. The case was adjourned for a week to allow him to get the money to pay the fine.

Thomas Graves, a hotel cook, coming here from Beloit, was also taken before the judge to answer to the charge of drunkenness. His sentence was a fine of $1 and costs amounting to $1.10 or ten days in jail. Sentence was suspended on condition that he leave town in two hours.

The case of John Flynn was adjourned until this afternoon. Flynn was also drunk.

A man named Ford was arrested for being intoxicated at the North Western depot. He was fined $3 and costs, $4.10 in all, and paying his fine was allowed to go.

PORTO RICANS WERE GUESTS AT LOCKUP

World Travelers Applied for Lodging Last Night—Have Been in Lockup Only 18 Months.

During the winter months and especially when the weather is as inclement as it was last evening the city lockup is the lodging place of the unfortunate who are unable to pay for a place to sleep. Generally these roomers for the night are the outcasts of whom society sees but little and hears of only through the newspapers and who constitute that class known as the American hobo.

Last evening applications were received for sleeping accommodations from two Porto Ricans, who registered as Raphael Miquen and Alile Rodrick. The men could speak only broken English, but they told an interesting story of their long travels. From their homes in Porto Rico they had journeyed to Honolulu, searching work on a sheep farm and working there for some time. Later they came to Seattle with a shipload of sheep, leaving Seattle they started eastward, working at various points for the railroads. In Duluth they had such employment for a time, expecting to secure employment in the packing houses at Chicago, they stopped in the Windy City but long enough to find that there was no labor for them there. The pair were good natured and seemed to take life quite cheerfully. They said they had been in this country but nineteen months.

LINCOLN STAMP WILL BE ON SALE FEB. 12

Postmaster Valentine Has Been So Advised Regarding Uncle Sam's Commemorative Issue.

Lincoln's centennial postage stamps will be placed on sale in Janesville on February 12, the centennial anniversary of the birth of the Great Emancipator. Postmaster Valentine has received word to this effect from A. L. Lawless, third assistant postmaster general. The special issue will be of the two-cent denomination and of the same size, shape and color as the familiar "stickers" in use at the present time.

The subject is a profile, within an ellipse on end, of the head of Lincoln from Saint Gaudens's statue. A spray of laurel leaves appears on either side of the ellipse. Above the subject appear the words "U. S. POSTAGE." The ellipse is broken by a ribbon containing the dates of Lincoln's birthday and of its 100th anniversary—"1809, Feb. 12, 1909"—with the denomination in words, "Two cents" beneath.

The stamps are to be held and not placed on sale until February 12, though they will be in the hands of the officials before that date. Supplies of them have been sent to all offices in the presidential zone, no requisition being necessary. Aside from the official shipments made, there is a provision that some more may be had by application at headquarters, immediately after February 12. The local office expects to have a good sale for the stamps and Postmaster Valentine will send in a requisition as soon as he can determine the probable proportions of the local demand. There have been inquiries about the stamps and it is believed there will be a good demand for them, especially on the anniversary date.

HANKEY FAMILY HELPED BY THE ASSOCIATED CHARITIES

Groceries, Stove, Bedding, Clothing, and Other Supplies Were Sent to Them by the Ladies.

In an item published Monday regarding the destitute circumstances of the Hankey family on South River street, the postmaster's department was given the entire credit for relieving the suffering and want. As a matter of fact the relief was largely provided by the Associated Charities organization. The ladies sent groceries, an excellent stove donated by the Golden Rule store, a bale of straw for bedding which was contributed by F. Phiberty, a load of wood, two pairs of blankets, clothing, and other supplies.

The Lesser Evil.

The colored boy employed by a New York lady was named Lyeurgus Jones. "Lyeurgus is a rather long name," she said to him; "suppose I call you Gus for short." "Ah doesn't like nicknames," he replied; "if you don't mind Lyeurgus, you kin call me Jonesey." She calls him Lyeurgus.

NEW EQUIPMENT FOR THE MYERS THEATRE

Fire Wall Being Built Which with Steel Doors and Asbestos Curtain Will Give Absolute Fire Protection.

In order to secure better protection against fire in the Myers Theatre, Manager Peter L. Myers is making new improvements to the building and others will be made later. Under the stage in the basement a brick fire wall is being constructed that will reach up to the stage floor. In place of the two entrances for the orchestra to the auditorium there will be but one and this door as well as the one leading to the basement under the auditorium will be of steel, so that fire in the back basement cannot enter the basement under the main part of the theatre. Another of the features that will make the building as near fire-proof as is possible will be the asbestos curtain which Mr. Myers is having made. This will run on grooves at the side of the stage and will prevent a fire on the stage from reaching the theatre proper.

REHEARING DENIED IN THE RAHLES CASE

Beloit Man's Damage Litigation Against J. Thompson & Sons Is Now Indefinitely Ended.

Frank Rahles' damage litigation against J. Thompson & Sons Mfg. Co. of Beloit is at an end. The supreme court has not only decided that there was no cause for the fire action, but recently filed the plaintiff's counsel. For the purpose of recovering damages amounting to $10,000 the case was started two years ago and a jury in the Rock county circuit court found for the plaintiff in the sum of $4,500. The nature of the injury to Rahles was such that the case made an interesting one. While walking through the shop he stumbled, fell, and in trying to catch himself placed his hands under a drop-hammer and at the same time his foot touched the treadle, allowing the heavy hammer to fall and crush his hand. In his suit for damages he claimed that the injury was the result of ignorance of the mechanism. The company showed, however, that Rahles had worked about the shop among the hammers for a long time and was acquainted with their workings.

BADLY SHATTERED

Party in politics, the primary law, the voice of the people, the panacea of all political ills, has been repudiated by the very men who forced its obnoxious requirements down the throats of the voters of the state.

"The still small voice at Washington," as one speaker in the heated debate in the legislature called it, has dictated what shall be done to defeat Isaac Stephenson for reelection.

The Gazette supported Senator Stephenson for reelection before the primaries and today stands forth clearly with the attitude that as long as the primary law remains on the statute books, the primary law is the primary law, and the legislature for republicans to vote for.

The same attitude would be adhered to had Mr. Hutton or Mr. Cook or Mr. McGovern been chosen at the fall primary. It is a matter of principle, not sentiment.

Sentinel Blaine files charges that he does not swear to, has not reliable substantiation for, and the ever-ready republicans who seek some way to show their allegiance to the "still small voice at Washington," block the election of a Senator on plea of investigation.

What is there to investigate? What is the real reason for this delay in carrying out the will of the people? Why this attitude of the primary law? It can be easily explained. Two years from now another Senator is to be named and they want their organization perfected, so that there can be no slip in the machinery.

If Senator Blaine's statement, unsupported by direct testimony, is to be believed why not believe the statement of Republican Chairman Edmunds, who handled and distributed the Stephenson campaign fund? Is not one man's reputation for honesty and integrity as good as the other? Has not Mr. Edmunds the right to be considered in this matter as well as Senator Blaine?

Has Mr. Stephenson become any more guilty because he spent money in the interests of his primary campaign than Mr. Hutton or Mr. Cook, and Mr. McGovern? Why not investigate their expenditures as well?

Yes, and why not go back a trifle and investigate the expenditures of the men who ran in the interests of reform? Who came into politics under the plea of reforming politics, and giving back to the people their rightful heritage, vote in nominations and elections? Wolves in sheep's clothing, who repudiate their own efforts on the first opportunity it does not work in their favor.

There are men in the state legislature who have been nominated and elected under the primary law who stand by its decision. Credit should be given them for the stand they have taken, and the firmness with which they meet the opposition. It is to be hoped that affairs will adjust themselves and that the question will be settled so that the legislature can get down to the work they were sent to Madison for and not to play politics for the future.

CALIFORNIA AND THE UNION

When the thirteen original states federated, Europe was a great deal further off than it is now and China was an interesting but remote remembrance of the captains of American built ships, with fabulous stories of their run from China to the New England ports. The possibility of one particular state involving all the rest in outside trouble does not seem to have been considered, by the statesmen of the Revolution. The Canadian border was almost trackless forest. The Rocky Mountains were a vague geographical expression, while border states bordered on nothing presenting elements of danger.

The steamship has changed all that and while the United States grew larger, the world grew smaller. When California emerged from the mists of Spanish history, we were already within ten days of European civilization. Our Canadian neighbors had to be thoughtfully considered. Texas had come into the Union but a few years before and the Mexican border was in a state of continued unrest. Yet with all these possibilities it never seems to have occurred to our statesmen, in the course of territorial expansion, to restrict the power of the constituent states of the Union in their relations with the outer world.

The Japanese agitation in California has never possessed any more respectability than the President gave it when he consented to negotiate with Mayor Schmitz of San Francisco, at that time under indictment for various offenses. Opinions may differ about the dignity of his course on that occasion. He has always had a tendency to play politics and make bargains, probably arising out of a sincere desire to get something done along the line of least resistance. However the situation may have been, it has at least given a noisy and ill-controlled element in California an exaggerated idea of its own importance.

When we complain that the outsider does not understand our institutions we ought to remember that the argument cuts both ways. It was all very well for us to explain to Italy that the peculiar character of our constitution made it impossible to interfere in the state of Louisiana over the Italian lynchings in New Orleans. How long would we have tolerated that excuse from a power much smaller than ourselves? We rejected it on one occasion when proffered by the Mikado of Japan, who professed to be unable to control certain fanatical forces of his. We sent a naval expedition and immediately convinced the particular daimio that his independence of the Mikado did not warrant an aggressive policy toward outsiders.

As we stand at present any seaborne or border state can plunge us into serious local trouble and we have no direct constitutional method of dealing with the case. The president has to go hat in hand to the senate element of San Francisco, to the derogation of his office and the exasperation of the rest of the United States. Japan is in no position to make military demonstrations now, nor is she at all likely to be for ten years to come; but this does not alter the anomalous condition now obtaining. A good many of us look with suspicion on the extension of the federal power, but in this respect there seems room for constitutional amendment.

Congress is still trusting that President Roosevelt will not stir them up any more this session by presenting proofs of their inefficiency and inner dealings. They would prefer to sit quietly by and have someone do their work rather than keep one eye on the White House and one ear close to the ground to hear the approaching cyclone in time for them to seek their places of safety until the storm passes.

Ten years ago wireless telegraphy seemed a visionary fancy, but today its practical uses show how rapidly in this age a good thing is pushed along. Without many hundreds would have gone to their death in the briny deep within the past week.

Two levathan battleships are a big addition to a navy, judged by either power of defense or cost. The advocates of a strong navy have no need to be discouraged.

Kern of Indiana appears to have subsided into the oblivion he lived in before he became a vice-presidential candidate. Even Colonel Watterston has not tried to comfort him.

The workers at the Panama strip will have a warm welcome for Taft. They know he is not a tenderfoot or a hostile critic, but tells things as he really sees them.

Japan is several laps ahead of California in keeping cool during this latest Anti-Jap craze that has swept over the Gold state of the west.

A poultry course at an agricultural college is not always a get-rich-quick scheme.

Think Americans immoral.

Cleveland, O., Jan. 29.—Delegates to the Home Mission Council of America last night heard modern Americans told to put on the brake and look to their morals. The speakers were Rev. Josiah Strong, political economist, and Dr. Charles Jefferson, Broadway Tabernacle, New York. Murder, suicide, divorce, lawlessness and crime formed the black shadows in the pictures they painted.

Appeal Delays an Execution.

Hamarek, N. D., Jan. 29.—Notice of an appeal to the supreme court was served on Attorney General Miller yesterday in the case of Joe Potter, convicted of the murder of a farmer and his daughter in Rolette county last fall and sentenced to hang February 5. This acts as a stay of execution.

John D. Long Retires.

Boston, Jan. 29.—Following a career of nearly half a century at the bar, former Secretary of the Navy John D. Long, last night announced that the long-standing partnership of Long & Hemenway had been dissolved and that he would retire from the active practice of law.

Heart to Heart Talks.

A LESSON FOR OLD FOLKS.

Up to within a year of her death Miss Anthony never walked stairs. SHE ALWAYS RAN UPSTAIRS.

That is the testimony of relatives and friends.

This remarkable woman took excellent care of her bodily health and, above all things, always maintained a hopeful spirit. SHE KEPT HER MIND YOUNG.

To those of mature years that is half the battle. It has been said a woman is as old as she looks, a man as old as he feels. But looks are largely a matter of feeling. He or she who feels young is young.

The man or woman who keeps in vital touch with the ongoing of things, who who always shows a keen interest in life, cannot—CANNOT—mind you—grow infirm of mind or dull of spirit.

A ripe old age that has behind it few regrets, which is the ripened fruit of temperate and sane living, ought to be the happiest age of all.

Do not let yourself grow slothful with the years—slothful in your THINKING, HABITS or DRESS.

If you have a hobby, follow it. If you champion a reform, work at it. Cultivate enthusiasm. Encourage hope. Say to yourself, "I must see the outcome of my striving."

Read the new books. Accustom yourself to the spirit of progress. Keep in vital touch with YOUNG PERSONS.

Above all else, CONTINUE TO THINK. He who ceases to think begins to die. An active mind will keep an old body active a long time.

Men, like trees, often begin dying at the top.

Do not indulge too much in that weakness of advancing years—looking backward. LOOK AT THE ROAD AHEAD. New ideals are in front of you. Look forward.

Determine to stay young in soul. Let go of the material world as much as possible. Cultivate the spiritual. The spiritual is nine-tenths of you. It dominates matter.

And thus may you grow old beautifully and naturally. Passion is past. Enjoyment is pure and sane. Keep young in heart and you will put a halo around those gray hairs of yours.

The Way We Clean a Watch

We take every piece apart and brush all pieces in benzine, which removes all oil and dirt; then we brush all pieces with soap and water; then we dip all pieces in a specially prepared solution, which removes all tarnish; then we wash again in soap and water; then dip in alcohol, which removes all acid or water; then dry thoroughly in saw dust; then each piece is brushed and all the pivot holes and jewels cleaned; then put the watch together, and adjust it, and all every part where friction takes place. This puts the watch in as fine condition as the day it left the factory.

Only experienced workmen do this work, as there are no apprentices in my store. Remember the prices—

PAINLESS DENTISTRY

A Deloit party dropped in the other day, and on leaving the office, he said, "Dr. Richards, I came all the way from Deloit to try you. I've heard of your painless work, and thought that if there was anybody that could save me from so much suffering, I was going to see him at once."

"Well," said I, "How is it? Are you satisfied with my work?"

"Entirely," said he, "You have not hurt me at all, and I thank you heartily for your carefulness."

No it goes almost every day.

I never was able to do away with as much of the pain of dentistry as I am now doing continually.

WORST SNOW STORM OF YEAR IS RAGING

Wires Are Down In All Directions and Transportation Schedules Are Badly Disarranged

Janesville and the surrounding country are being visited today by the heaviest and dampest snow-storm of the year. Rain turned to snow early last evening and there has been no letup since that time. A stiff wind is blowing out of the north and the streets are deserted by all except those who find it an absolute necessity to venture out. The snow has already upset railroad schedules and played havoc with the telephone and telegraph wires. Madison's direct telephone communication with Milwaukee is cut off and messages are being relayed via the Janesville and Chicago lines. The Wisconsin Telephone Co. has long distance wires out of here are also reported to be in bad shape. The Gazette's Associated Press service was crippled and the market report for the day could not be secured.

This morning the snow and sleet cut off all telegraphic communication from the St. Paul depot, the wires broken from about half-past nine until almost noon. At the North Western depot it was reported that no wires north of Brooklyn had suffered.

The five trains that pass through here on the St. Paul tracks almost simultaneously a little after ten o'clock a. m. were all late this morning. The first to arrive was the Davis Junction train, which did not get here until half-past ten.

SENDS A SOUVENIR OF OKLAHOMA'S METROPOLIS

Oklahoma City Looked Good to John H. Nicholson and Pictures Prove Him An Excellent Judge.

Through the kindness of John H. Nicholson, who was in Kansas City yesterday and paid a visit to Oklahoma City, "Punchy," on his return from a tour of Texas and the south, a handsome calendar with photographs of the fine public buildings, parks, business blocks, and private homes of the Oklahoma metropolis has come to the Gazette's editorial desk. Mr. Nicholson states that business is splendid all through the south-west. He expects to be back in a week or so.

DON'T PAY RENT

OWN YOUR OWN HOME.

Arrangements have been made by the Lowell Realty Co. to erect model houses to suit purchasers, by which the person who desires a home of his own may secure it by making a moderate first payment and the balance in monthly installments about the same as rent.

These houses are to be built in one of Janesville's choicest residence sections—where property has a high valuation, and is constantly increasing. There are a great number of people paying rent who should and would own homes if given the opportunity to do so without cramping the household finances.

The plan formulated by the Lowell Realty Co. realizes that long cherished hope of owning a home. The house is erected complete, to suit your tastes and ideas. In order that final details may be consummated, we desire to have those interested write us or call at our office at once.

Chicago, Milwaukee & Puget Sound Ry. Co. is the New Designation to be Blazoned on Cars.

"St. Paul" is no longer a proper designation or nickname for the railway system operated by the corporation hitherto known as the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Ry. Co. The word "St. Paul" and the initials thereof are slated to disappear from all rolling stock, property and printed matter, and in their place will appear the initials, C. M. & P. S. Ry. Co., the same standing for Chicago, Milwaukee & Puget Sound—the new name of this great transportation concern. The change, made advisable by the new extension to the Pacific coast, will necessitate the expenditure of thousands of dollars. In anticipation thereof, the paint shops of the company have been working overtime for the past year or two. Numerous locomotives, coaches, and freight cars have already been sent out with the new name blazoned on them in bright colors.

DEATH OF CHILD IS MOURNED AT ALBANY

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Albany, Jan. 28.—The announcement that Dorothy Silver, child of James and Lela Silver, was dead, came as a most painful shock to the village last Friday morning. As late as Tuesday evening the little one was seen about and was her customary bright, happy self. Practically no one knew that she had been taken sick during Tuesday night, for she had appeared so much better on Wednesday morning that those in attendance did not consider her case at all serious. Wednesday evening she grew rapidly worse. Three physicians were called and did everything in their power for her. In spite of their combined skill and the tenderest ministrations and loving care of her parents and many kind friends, the little one passed away at 9:30 o'clock Thursday evening after some hours of intense suffering, such as convinced the physicians that she had become poisoned from something which she had eaten. The child was about six years old. All the months of her life had been a joy and delight to her parents for she was a beautiful and winsome child, quick to make friends, and bright beyond her years. All who were accustomed to see her in her daily life in the village or with her father on any of his trips to neighboring places will long remember her bright face and attractive ways. She was born at Albany on April 25th, 1933, and passed peacefully away on January 28th, 1939.

The funeral was held at the home of her parents on Saturday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock. Rev. Pongilly of the Methodist church gave a message of comfort; Mrs. John Atherton and Miss Flo Atherton sang a duet, and these ladies with A. P. Atherton and Frank Graves, sang two numbers. The Misses Harriet Tills, Edith Lewis, Georgia Bump and Mary Rhinow acted as bearers. The little casket was covered with a profusion of flowers and the home was filled with sympathetic friends, many of whom were from out of town.

The remains were laid away in the local cemetery. The entire community feels the grief and sorrow of the parents and extends sympathy.

Postoffice inspector Bird inspected the local office Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. E. T. Bliss entertained the public school teachers and other friends Tuesday evening.

TOO MUCH POLITICS

Miners Refuse to Protest Against Free Coal.

LIVELY DAY IN CONVENTION

Indianapolis, Ind., Jan. 29.—James Mooney of Missouri, a member of the national executive board, scolded the convention of the United Mine Workers of America yesterday for making too much politics in with its proceedings. He spoke against a resolution protesting to congress against putting coal on the free list, saying:

"The other day you committed this convention to populism when you recommended the issue of currency instead of bonds for payment of the expense of deepening waterways. Now you have committed it to socialism by adopting a resolution declaring for public ownership of public utilities. If you protest against the removal of the duty on coal you commit us to Republicanism, and if this happens, I shall introduce something that shall commit you to Bryanism."

The resolution was defeated.

Dispute Over Carbonite.

In the afternoon session, a dispute arose in the course of discussion of the use of a new high power explosive called carbonite or Manureite, in the coal mines. President Feehan of the Pittsburg district charged that he had been ignored by the national executive board when he had asked to be notified of its next meeting, so that he might present the danger of the use of the new explosive. It was intimated that the question was an acute one and that strikes might result if an early solution of the problem were not arrived at.

National President Lewis maintained that Mr. Feehan had had notice of the meeting of the board and that it would have considered the matter had it been presented. John Walker of Illinois, Mr. Lewis' rival in the election for the presidency, after declaring that it was quite impossible to hear what was being said by different speakers because of noise being made around his seat by national organizers of President Lewis' administration, charged that "the same party had averted consideration by the national board of many serious matters within the last year, but he thought that from this time forward there would be a reform in procedure."

Favor Woman Suffrage.

A resolution was adopted advocating woman suffrage and calling upon congress to pass an amendment to the constitution "to be submitted to the legislatures of the several states for ratification, prohibiting the disfranchisement of United States citizens on account of sex."

Lewis Probably Re-elected.

It seems probable that the convention will continue until the latter part of next week. Though the tollers of the ballots cast for national officers are using six voting machines in tabulating it is not expected that they can announce the result of the count before Saturday. A statement, said by President Lewis' friends to be authoritative, was given out that the count had proceeded far enough to show that Lewis' majority over his opponent John Walker would be from 15,000 to 20,000.

The Walker party is preparing material with a view of contesting the election on charges of irregularity in the polling in some districts last December. Mr. Walker's friends generally acknowledge that on its face, the result of the balloting will show a majority for Lewis.

REFORMS IOWA ELECTIONS.

Bill Making Radical Changes in Primaries Is Introduced.

Des Moines, Ia., Jan. 29.—A bill was introduced today in the legislature which will revolutionize primary elections in Iowa. It proposes a dozen amendments to the present primary law. The most important change is in regard to the relation of names and their sequence on the ballots of the respective parties. Starting with the names arranged in alphabetical order, 100 ballots shall be printed. Then the name at the top of each list shall be changed to the bottom and another 100 ballots printed, and so on. The system in use has been bitterly assailed.

The present primary law provides that the vote on the candidate for United States senator shall be regarded as an expression of sentiment, but the new bill makes it a party nomination.
